ARAB-JEWISH RIOTS IN ALGERIA SPREAD TO SEVERAL TOWNS

Trouble Crops Up in Other Centres as French Troops Quell Riots in Constantine—Terrible Atrocities Reported by Jewish Telegraphic Agency—Noted Families Exterminated

CONSTANTINE, Algeria, Aug. 7 (AP).—Fighting between Jews and Arabs has spread to towns surrounding Constantine, reports reaching here today, revealed, giving rise to fears the death toll may be considerably higher than officials have stated.

French military authorities were in complete control of the situation here today, but strengthened their forces to prevent an outbreak tomorrow, when funerals are held for twenty-seven persons killed in the rioting here between Friday and yesterday.

Three persons were killed and five men were injured, all of them Jews, in fighting at Ain Beida, sixty miles from here. The mayor of the town also was injured when he tried to stop the battle.

DESOLATION AND HORROR

A correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency after a tour of the city reported scenes of desolation and horror, including the mutilation of girls and children. He reported whole families of Jews had been locked in their homes and burned to death.

"It will take days before the world obtains a true picture of atrocities during the programme in the Jewish quarters," the correspondent said. "Grey-bearded Jews were stabbed to death and little children put to death with knives."

ARCHDUKE MAY WIN PRINCESS

Claimant to Austrian Throne on Way to Italy Starting Many Rumors

BRUSSELS, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Archduke Otto, claimant to the Austrian throne, left today for Italy, and those who profess to know say that he will press his suit for the hand of the nineteen-year-old Princess Maria of that country.

They also say that he seeks to marry the youngest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel, the question of eventual restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty possibly is in the back of his mind.

IN HANDS OF ANTON

Persons who claim to be well informed, declare they know that political negotiations accompanying the expected betrothal are in the hands of the Archduke Anton, husband of Rumania's Princess Elena.

Otto arrived unexpectedly tonight at Wendeny-On-Ser, and members of his entourage declined to say where he was bound.

MAY MEET IL DUCE

ROME, Aug. 7 (AP).—Despite denials by Government spokesmen, the report persisted here tonight that the Archduke Otto will meet Premier Mussolini when he arrives in Italy from Belgium.

Rumors that a marriage is contemplated between Otto and Princess Marie have been heard frequently, but always have been denied here.

Otto is expected to stay at the palace of the Bourbon Parma family, in Viareggio, where his mother, the Empress Zita, now is a guest.

POLITICAL WAR BECOMES SIEGE

Battling Factions in New Orleans Continue to Hold Positions—Court Action Postponed

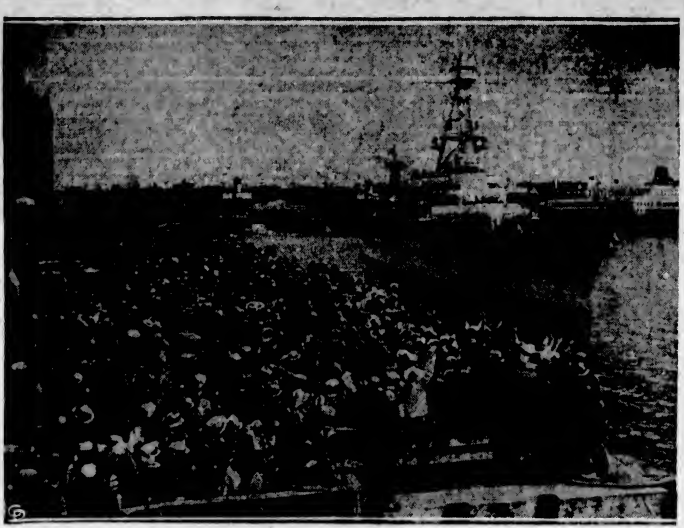

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Long-Walmaley "war" settled down today to a siege today after court action had failed to demolish the National Guardsmen called out at the request of Senator Huey P. Long a week ago to seize the voters' registration books.

Long's troops remained in possession of the registrar's office, with Mayor T. Semmes Walmaley's special policemen holding the fort in the City Hall across the street. The end of the siege appeared indefinite as court action was postponed until next week.

Eighty-Foot Sea Serpent Reported Off the Azores

SAINT NAZAIRE, France, Aug. 7 (CP-Havas).—Commander Sylvestre, of the French liner Cuba, today officially reported to his company a sea serpent had been sighted from the Cuba, 800 miles southwest of the Azores.

A quartermaster and two sailors corroborated the statement. The monster was from eighty to eighty-five feet long, shaped like a huge lizard, with a long neck topped by a tiny head, and it had two humps on its back.

It was visible, Commander Sylvestre stated, for about thirty seconds, making four leaps out of the water, each time turning its head as though to view the ship.

Returning to England To Claim Big Fortune

TORONTO, Aug. 7 (CP).—John G. Gallagher, convicted in 1922 of the murder of John G. Coward, in Alberta, sentenced to be hanged, and acquitted, left today for England to claim $500,000 which a suit promised him if he settles down and marries before December 25, 1938.

Gallagher, who has been living in Toronto during the last three months, under an assumed name, was convicted of arson when his home in Alberta was destroyed by fire. He had $1,700 insurance on the building. Sentenced to life imprisonment, he appealed. It was reduced to ten years and he served the term in full.

A former member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Gallagher served in the British regular army, in India, and in the artillery during the war.

Ambitions of United States Nazis Revealed at Committee Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7 (AP).—Dr. George Gysling, German vice-consul here, today, refused to appear before the Congressional committee investigating un-American affairs.

The committee at present is concentrating its inquiry on the Silver Shirts, an alleged organization of armed men with pro-Nazi leanings, which, according to testimony given the committee, has been drilling in secluded spots near San Diego with stolen Government rifles and with the avowed purpose of changing the Government of the United States.

POLICIES BRING GREATER TRADE

Hon. H. H. Stevens Points to Increase Under Bennett Government

EDMONTON, Aug. 7 (CP-Havas).—The Bennett Government has increased Canada's trade by four, five and six times in some classes by means of its Ottawa agreements and through foreign treaties, has saved Canada's wheat market to the point where it is now nearing normalcy; has aided small farmers and small business through legislation, and now is ready to lead Canada into conditions brighter than ever, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, assured a public meeting here tonight.

Hon. Mr. Stevens' address was a defence against criticisms of the Conservative regime at Ottawa, and an aggressive demonstration of the accomplishments of the Government since it took office in 1930.

Temperatures At New Highs In Mid-West

CHICAGO, Aug. 7 (AP).—Centring its devastating attack on Kansas and Missouri, the reborn heat wave sent temperatures to new highs in many parts of the Middle West today.

The current heat wave brought death to four persons in Iowa and temperatures of 103 were recorded at Ottumwa and Keokuk.

Kansas and Missouri remained in the grip of the 100-degree temperatures which laid siege last Saturday. The official reading at Topeka was 104 at mid-afternoon. Kansas City had its fourth consecutive day of 106-degree heat or higher. Poplar Bluff, Mo., sweltered in 107, and many other Missouri cities reported 100 degrees or higher.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 7 (CP).—Dollar wheat took a peek at the Grain Exchange today, and then fled like an elusive mirage as slight recessions in foreign markets affected Winnipeg prices.

But the ephemeral appearance of the three-figure quotation buoyed the hopes of traders that stabilized higher prices were in prospect.

DRIVE CLAIMS ANOTHER LIFE

Soldier of Austrian Army Hanged for Taking Part in Putsch

VIENNA, Aug. 7 (AP).—The relentless campaign of the Austrian Government against the Nazis, today claimed another life on the gallows—this time the life of a soldier in the regular army.

Ernst Feike, a soldier, was hanged in the courtyard here for participating in the putsch in which Chancellor Dollfuss was slain.

He was the first member of the Government armed forces to be tried and executed on charges of high treason in connection with the Nazi outbreak.

SAVED FROM GALLOWS
Another death sentence was imposed today in Klagenfurt, but the prisoner, Karl Kosterling, also a Nazi, received a commutation to fifteen years' imprisonment from President Miklas.

Feike, in his court-martial trial, brought in the name of Emil Fey, former Vice-Chancellor and still a Cabinet member, who was imprisoned in the Federal Chancellory when Dollfuss was killed.

PLANS OF REBELS
Feike testified that the Nazis who seized the Government building desired to establish a "ministry of national concentration" with Anton Rintelen, then Minister to Rome, at the head, and with Fey as a member.

As the death sentence was imposed, the soldier raised his arm in a Nazi salute and shouted "Heil Hitler!"

He was pulled back to his bench by a guard.

Women of Near East Make Slow Progress Toward Emancipation

Lady Storrs, Visiting Here With Distinguished Husband, Discusses Trends Toward Freedom Among Her Sex in Palestine, Egypt, Cyprus

AN interesting picture of the slow steps by which the women of the Near East are attaining social and political emancipation, is given by Lady Storrs, who is here with her distinguished husband, Sir Ronald Storrs, K.C.M.G., C.B.E., a former Governor of Jerusalem, and resident in similar capacity, at different times, in Cyprus and Northern Rhodesia.

"Women themselves throughout the Near East would undoubtedly on the whole welcome greater freedom. It is the men who are conservative and unwilling for them to gain the liberties of their Western sisters," she told a Colonist interviewer yesterday.

WOMEN OF PALESTINE

The women of Palestine are largely Moslem, and until recently were veiled, whether Moslem or Christian. But now, since it has been made illegal for the women of Turkey to go veiled, the women of Palestine are showing a little more inclination to cast off their veils, too. In Egypt they are already voluntarily unveiling. In the schools girls don the veil at adolescence. It seems to depend on whether the observer is Moslem or non-Moslem when it comes to the leaving off of the veil. When Sir Ronald and Lady Storrs were in Jerusalem eight years ago, the girls kept their veils on when the Moslem inspectors were visiting the schools, but paid no attention whatever to the custom when the inspectors were English.

In one respect parts of the Near East are in advance of British Columbia, as women inspectors of schools are known. In Jerusalem there is a school for training women teachers. Before the British took control there were no government schools for girls, who previously had received their schooling chiefly in convents. There are now several medical and other missions, with schools attached, among the better schools being the Church of England Mission School to which a great many of the leading families send their daughters. Unfortunately, says Lady Storrs, owing to the custom of early marriage among the Moslems, girls of the poorer families do not continue in school long enough to acquire anything approaching higher education, leaving ment of women and children. Sir Ronald and Lady Storrs were also stationed in Cyprus. There Sir Ronald started a branch of the British Social Hygiene Council, whose service was to advise the Government concerning health and morals affecting women and children. The Mothers' Union is also established in Cyprus, and it was with their support that a Bill was passed doing away with brothels—a very much needed reform in a country where venereal disease is rampant.

In all progressive plans aimed at the betterment of hygienic, moral, and social conditions, the problem in the Near East, Lady Storrs says, is to get people of the country to carry on the work with perseverance. They will talk most enthusiastically and propound the most wonderful schemes, but when it comes to doing the actual work or subscribing regularly, enthusiasm is apt to wane.

on a par with the British Columbia singles carded for Saturday. The P.N.W. sectional doubles final is billed for 1 o'clock this afternoon, and will see Rosenberg and Lee, smart Seattle team, opposing Jack Brawn and Colin Milne, clever Vancouver racket wielders, in what should be one of the best doubles matches of the present meet.

FAVORITE DEFEATED

Bob Harman, United States national boys' champion, and one of the favorites to lift the men's singles crown, passed out of further competition before the final playing of Bob Underwood, Los Angeles, another leading United States junior player. Underwood took advantage of Harman's net weakness and with fine placements and steady play, eliminated the strong Berkeley contender in the straight set match, the scores being 7-5, 6-2.

The victory advanced Underwood to the third round of the singles competition, where he will meet H. Rosenberg, strong Seattle contender. Ross "Bud" Hocking, local net star, advanced to the quarter-finals in his quest for the men's singles crown at the expense of H. Massie, Berkeley, by scores of 6-4, 8-6, 6-2, 6-1.

Continuing to show good form, Miss E. Raegener, flashy San Francisco net star, eliminated Miss Philippen, Victoria club champion, in a two-set match, the scores being 6-3, 6-1. Mrs. G. M. Gross, Berkeley, continued her march to the title by defeating Miss M. Moncrieff, Vancouver, 8-6, 6-1.

After dropping the first set, 4-6, Jack Brawn, Vancouver, came back to take the next two sets, 6-4, 6-2, in his singles match with Tate Coulthard, Berkeley, with scores of 6-4, 6-4. Brawn's fine place shot carried him through to the win column in the last two sets.

INTERNATIONAL FINAL
An international final was assured in the P.N.W. sectional singles with the victory of Mel Dranga, Seattle, over Jack Brawn, Vancouver, and the defeat of Ross "Bud" Hocking, Victoria, by Ossie Ryall, Vancouver.

Playing the steadier game and having command of the situation all of the way, Ossie Ryall, Mainland title-holder, disposed of Ross "Bud" Hocking, Victoria, and No. 1 ranking British Columbia player last year, by straight sets, with scores of 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Jack Brawn, Vancouver, and runner-up to Ryall in the Mainland championship meet recent, fell before the hard driving and fine placements of Mel Dranga, Seattle, in the other P.N.W. sectional semi-final. After dropping the first set, 6-4, Brawn came back strong in the next set and carried his clever American opponent to twenty games before finally losing, 9-11. Dranga finished strong and took the final set by a 6-1 score.

VARIABLE STAR HAS INTEREST

Dr. Helen Hogg Speaks to Astronomical Society on Stellar Peculiarities

All stars are interesting to the astronomer. But to the amateur astronomer the variable stars offer a peculiarly fertile field for original and independent study. At Monday night's meeting of the local section of the Astronomical Society, held at Victoria College, both Dr. Helen Hogg, of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory staff, Saanich, and W. Boyd Brydon, president of the society, stressed the attractiveness of the study, which would prove not only a very fascinating hobby, but the results of which would be of great value to astronomical science by helping to build up history charts of any given variable.

Dr. Helen Hogg was the lecturer, her subject, "Some Peculiar Stars," dealing entirely with variables. "Although to the casual observer the light of the stars appears constant from night to night and from year to year, actually there are already known in the sky about 10,000 stars whose light varies," she informed her audience.

RECOGNIZED LONG AGO

The most conspicuous of these variables had been recognized as such since the sixteenth century. Variables were divided into several classes: The long-period variables, the Cepheid variables, the irregular variables, and the novae, or new stars. With the aid of very clear charts, projected by lantern, these various types were aptly described. The long-period variables, which offered a particularly fascinating field for the amateur student, varied in brightness as much as 10,000-fold in a period averaging about a year. At the present time amateurs with small telescopes were doing work of inestimable importance to science by keeping track of the light variations of several hundred of these variables.

The Cepheid variables had a period ranging from a month down to a day between their brightest and their faintest magnitudes. They derived their name from the typical member of the Cepheid variables in the constellation Cepheus, and to the astronomer furnished one of the most important means for estimating astronomical distances, for once the period of a Cepheid had been determined its distances might readily be computed.

IRREGULAR VARIABLES

The irregular variable was the star whose light might increase 100-fold within a few hours and without warning, the periods being unknown. In addition to the foregoing were the spectacular novae, or "new stars," which suddenly flared forth in dazzling brilliance where formerly only a faint star had been visible, occasionally possessing such brightness that they outshone any other star in the sky.

A recent theory, propounded at Mount Wilson, linked the brightest of these novae with the formation of the cosmic rays and as being due to the collapse or disintegration of a star.

It is computed that such a supernova gives off in twenty-five days as much heat and light as our own sun does in ten million years at its present rate of combustion, the lecturer stated.

Examples of the majority of these variables were to be found not only in the Milky Way of our own system, but also in the nearer of the external galaxies, such as the Magellanic clouds and the Andromeda nebulae.

ECLIPSING BINARY

The "eclipsing binary" was not a true variable, the present theory being that this was caused when the darker of two stars revolving around some common centre cut off the light of the brighter star.

The slides shown with the lecture showed how variables were discovered by means of photographic plates. Some of these variables, 10,000 times fainter than can be seen by the unaided eye, had required ten-minute exposure to secure the picture. There were also shown light curves of all the different types of variables, illustrating how they vary in brightness, and how thickly seeded with them is the Milky Way and the Andromeda nebulae.

Following the lecture, the audience repaired to the grounds for observation work under the guidance of R. Peters. The special object of study was Sagittarius, a southern constellation visible only in the Summer months, and particularly interesting because it is in the direction of the centre of the universe.

Next week's lecture will be on "The Sun," the speaker to be Gordon Shaw, and the following week "The Moon" will be the subject. Meetings hereafter will begin at 8 o'clock instead of 8:30 o'clock.

The president, Mr. Boyd Brydon, speaking on behalf of the society, extended the members' congratulations to Dr. Beals, who has recently been granted the degree of Doctor of Science by the University of London.

WHEAT HAS COME BACK

In every agricultural country there is belief that, whatever the conditions, the farmer will grumble. When the price of wheat went up to a bushel, the Prairie grain grower looked forward to the day when it would go still higher. When wheat actually was being sold at two dollars a bushel, the farmer appeared to be content, but he harbored a delusion that his products could be "stabilized" at that figure and actually tried to keep it there. The price of wheat fell to a deplorably low figure and stayed there for too long a period. The farmer suffered great adversity, and we all sympathized with him in his affliction.

But every tide in the affairs of men, including the affairs of the grain growers, turns. We are back again to the days when good crops on the plains portended good times for all the people of Canada. We are no longer considering measures for curtailing wheat acreage and reducing crops. Wheat has gone up to a dollar a bushel, at least temporarily, but permanently higher prices seem to be assured. Natural forces have accomplished something that was beyond the powers of mankind. The "carry-over" is going to be reduced and brighter prospects stored in its stead. The farmer is himself again, but perhaps it would be too much to expect that he will forget to grumble and give thanks for a fair if not for a bountiful harvest. There are former Prairie farmers living in Victoria, but still with interests in the neighboring provinces, who are of more cheerful countenance than for many days. There is no country in the world that can permanently compete with Canada in the production of the finest quality of wheat. There is some comfort in that thought.

DROSS AND PURE METAL

There is a natural law of physics that when the pot boils the scum comes to the top. There also appears to be a natural law in the political world that when the pot boils the scum comes to the top. The political pot has been boiling furiously in Europe for some time, and in most cases it appears as if the scum had come to the bottom. The political pot has been bubbling in other parts of the world as well as in Europe. It has been boiling furiously in some parts of Canada, and only the future can tell whether the baser elements which have been brought to the top will be skimmed off and the political atmosphere purified.

In Europe for the time being the most prominent political figures endowed with great potential powers for good or ill are Hitler and Mussolini. The German dictator is fanning the flames of the fire of turmoil and discord, and the Italian dictator is pouring water upon them. There seems to be no doubt that for the prompt and timely intervention of Mussolini with a display of force an attempt would have been made by the Nazis of Germany acting in collusion with the Nazis of Austria to seize that state and incorporate it in the dictatorship established by Hitler.

But the pot is still simmering, and the question remains whether Germany or Italy shall dominate the affairs of Austria.

Hitler declares that he is a man of peace, but an armed force of Austrian Nazis has been maintained in Germany, and was organized for the avowed purpose, when the occasion appeared to be opportune, of crossing the border and leading an insurrection against the Government of Austria. The conspirators against the peace and political integrity of Austria acted prematurely and their designs were frustrated. Hitler may profess that he is a man of peace, and he may maintain that he has no designs upon Austria, the late conspiracy being merely a domestic affair; but the dictator is under suspicion and is not considered worthy of trust. The question of the future of Austria has not yet been settled.

The troubled state of Europe is another illustration of the truth stated by a great poet and philosopher that the memory of the good deeds of men are buried with their bodies and that the ill they do live after them. Napoleon, the scourge of the world for many years, is the model for some of the dictators of the present day. But Napoleon was a great statesman as well as a brilliant military leader. He brought fame to the armed legions of France, which was but a fleeting thing, but he also gave France a legal code which has been perpetuated in some of the laws of the most advanced nations of the world. Hitler is as ambitious as the great Czar, but he has displayed none of the talents of the man he has adopted as a model. His qualities as a leader of men and a statesman have yet to be demonstrated. He must have secured such undoubted influence over the minds of the German people, though an alien and apparently merely an adventurer. The Germans for the present appear to be governed entirely by his emotions, not by the dictates of reason or common sense. The existing conditions in Germany cannot be permanent. About the only thing which can be said about the future of the nation is that anything may happen, and happen almost any day. The scum cannot sink to the bottom, it must be skimmed off the top.

The thought may have occurred to the minds of some of us that Canada has produced an imitator of Napoleon and an admirer of the methods of Hitler or a disciple of Mussolini. The boiling political pot has brought Mr. Mitchell Hepburn to the surface, and he is Premier of Ontario, with evident ambitions to become Prime Minister of Canada. In one respect Mr. Hepburn is like Herr Hitler. He has a wonderful gift of the gab and there is no limit to his ambitions. Whether he has the attributes of a statesman we do not know. If he is merely a flash and a flame, merely the dross which comes temporarily to the top to be skimmed off, the future will determine. In the meantime he says he is organizing a force for the purpose of marching upon and capturing Ottawa.

PARTIZAN MADNESS

If it were feasible, we believe a political moratorium would be a blessed thing. There surely is nothing in common between the Liberalism of Canada and the Socialism of Great Britain. Yet the Liberal newspapers of Canada cannot refrain from pointing with jubilation to the results of British elections. After every British by-election the apparent decline of the Conservative majorities compared with the majorities at the last general election are commented upon by the Canadian Free Trade press as indicative of a change of government at the next election.

But the Canadian Liberal newspapers never comment upon the most significant facts as revealed by the British by-elections. Those facts are that the last British general election was held at a time of crisis in the affairs of the nation, with a consequence that the majorities polled for the Conservative candidates were abnormal and that in the by-elections the Liberals either entered no candidates at all or that the candidates nominated received insignificant—or possibly we should say significant—support.

The further fact made clear is that if there should be a change in the British Government, the new Government cannot be a Liberal Government. It must be a Socialist Government. It is possible that the Liberals of Canada would rather see a revolutionary government than a non-revolutionary government in power in Britain, merely to give it an opportunity for jubilation at the defeat of the Conservative party.

One of the leaders of the British Socialist movement has publicly and defiantly declared that if elected to power immediate measures would be taken to retain power by force. Would that be a triumph of Liberal principles? Would it be any aid to the Liberalism of Canada if a dictatorship by the proletariat were established in the Mother Land? The position of Canadian Liberalism should be explained, for at present it is incomprehensible.

Another matter on which there should be a political moratorium is on the attitude of Canadian Liberalism to preferential trade between the Sister Dominions and the Mother Dominion of the Empire. The leader of the Canadian Liberal party has declared that if he gains power one of his first acts will be denunciation of the trade agreements adopted at the Imperial Conference held at Ottawa. There is no doubt at all regarding the beneficial effects of those agreements to the Dominions of the Empire. The agreements have been particularly beneficial to the trade between Canada and Great Britain. Mr. Mackenzie King, however, is opposed to them on the alleged ground that they have been prejudicial to the trade of Canada with foreign countries. There has been a general decline in world trade; there has been a marked increase in the trade of all the Dominions. There is no immediate possibility of a moratorium in tariffs. The Imperial preferences are palpable facts. Trade agreements with foreign nations are remote possibilities. Yet it is proposed to scrap advantages we possess for advantages we may never gain. All the nations of the world are suffering from a continuance of the depression in business. The nations of the British Empire alone are enjoying a marked degree of prosperity. If there could be anything more stupid than the attitude of Canadian Liberalism to Imperial preferential trade, possibly some qualified free trade authority will have the goodness to offer an explanation. The situation has the appearance of an outbreak of political rabies.

PYTHON IN JAVA

The sun rained down bright fire in every ray. And underneath the frangipani trees The little zoo was so molten that day. With every creature doing at its ease. Incredible and gorgeous, the great snake In shining gold-and-silver coat of mail Lay motionless, yet secretly awake. A potent force within a flimsy veil. Quiescent power, Olympian majesty Glittered in every dreadful fold and line, While from the centre of that filigree One cold, gold eye stared steadily in mine. The little Malays, chattering near the fence, Seemed glad of serpentine indifference. —Oriana Atkinson in The New York Times.

BAY ROUTE IS SATISFACTORY

Trade and Commerce Minister Expects Churchill Trade to Increase

SASKATOON, Aug. 7 (CP).—Successful operation of the Hudson Bay shipping route during the season now about to open probably will result in consideration of lower marine insurance rates, the Saskatoon Board of Trade executive was told by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, yesterday.

The minister spent the day in Saskatoon en route to Vancouver. He met with the trade board executive and men interested in the cattle trade for more than an hour, leading a frank discussion on problems of the Hudson Bay route.

Dealing with the northern waterway as a strictly commercial proposition, "a cold business proposition," the minister informed the board of trade that "in the future, Churchill must face operations on a competitive basis." It was just as if he were a government to lend some means of assistance to a new venture, a new route, but the time was approaching when Churchill would have to stand on its own legs.

He was any day, the meeting of his interest in the Hudson Bay route, described the many Government actions by which his department had given assistance and gave the minister the impression that he was quite possible this number would be increased to fifteen or twenty. The ships would carry grain chiefly. Cattle shipments would be small.

Militating against Churchill as a cattle exporting base was the following points: Cost of installation of cattle stalls was about $14 per stall; cost of handling cattle was $20 per head; cost of loading and unloading was $10 per head; cost of return cargo, and infrequency of trips due to the short season. These were the main factors against cattle export, but there were other factors. The ships were "certain, skilful, well-trained cattle brokers" located in Montreal who had wide contracts and handled shipments in an experienced manner.

SAANICH CUTS ON DELEGATES

To Send Two Representatives to U.B.C.M. Convention—Split Vote

Branding conventions as "joy rides for a few," Councillor G. Stanley Eden Monday night succeeded in piloting a resolution through Saanich Council, calling for the Municipality to send only two delegates to Kamloops to attend the convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities in October.

Reeve William Crouch and Council delegates, and R. R. F. Sewell, municipal clerk and union secretary, will be present. Formerly three representatives had been sent by the council exclusive of the clerk.

A divided vote was recorded. Councillors Olson, L. C. Hagan, E. C. Warren and W. R. Wood voting "Yes" and Councillors Fred Borden, G. A. Vantreight and H. D. Coton, "No."

Councillor Eden was emphatic in his remarks. "There is a crying need for economy today and I think we should cut down on things which are not necessary," he said.

He was faced with a tremendous claim question. Some of these men claim they are not treated well and if the money is to be spent it should go towards alleviation of trouble." He continued, "The convention work is done by a few and the 'many' follow. These conventions are a 'joy ride' for a whole bunch of those fellows."

It had previously been suggested the Reeve and Councillors Vantreight and Coton be appointed. However, the council prevailed on Councillor Coton to accept the post along with Reeve Crouch on the condition an alternative be appointed should he be unable to go.

It is expected the alternative will be selected at the next council session.

No letter to the Editor will be inserted except on the proper signature and address of the writer. True rule admits of no exception. No letter should exceed 100 words in length.

ARCHITECTURAL PROFESSION
Sir,—During these difficult and trying times, the building trade has suffered severely. With it are included the architects.

A short while ago, a delegation of Vancouver and Victoria architects visited the Government officials at the Parliament Buildings and made a plea for work to be distributed wherever possible among members of the profession in practice in the Province of British Columbia. They had a sympathetic hearing, and it was hoped that any Government work, wherever possible, would be distributed among the practising architects, or divided among members of the profession to enable them to weather the storm.

The Federal Government recently placed a Government job with a firm of Vancouver architects, the cost amounting to approximately $100,000. The Victoria architects who were on the delegation to the Parliament Buildings of which I was a member, clearly understood that if any Government buildings were given to the profession, the work would be distributed among them, as all need the work, and it was left at that.

I read in the local papers the other day that the Marine Building was to be carried out and the work given to local architects. I telephoned the vice-president of the Architectural Association and asked him if anything had been done about it. He said yes, and that I had not been to any meetings or I would know about it. I told him that I had not been notified. He accused me of lack of interest in the work. I asked if anything had been done and he admitted that two or three architects in Victoria are already in line for this work.

It is not going to be spread over the local architects, although they all need it and understood that this was to be the procedure adopted. I telephoned a well-known and highly respected architect here and asked him if he had been notified. He had not and knew nothing about it. I told him that I intended to write a letter to the press and make the situation clear. He agreed that it was the best thing to do.

I consider that until we have a better understanding throughout the whole business community in Canada and the world in general and try to be honest among ourselves, we cannot hope that the world will right itself. The start must be made with the individual. I regret having to publish these facts regarding my own profession, but feel that the matter should be brought to light before the job is settled as it is one which should benefit as far as possible the local architects as a whole.

ISLAND TESTS FOR APPARATUS

Ingenious Set of Weather Recorders Designed by Northwest Foresters

Experiments with weather-testing devices are to be carried out by the British Columbia Forestry Branch shortly, on Vancouver Island, to determine the practical worth of a simplified form of gauges invented by the Pacific Northwest Forest Experimental Station, of Portland, Ore. Five simple devices, costing $25, have been designed to take the place of $250 worth of standard scientific instruments. If the tests be successful, British Columbia forest stations may be similarly equipped. A fan psychrometer contrasts wet and dry bulb thermometers, readings from which, with the aid of tables, give the degree of relative humidity of the air. A stream-lined wind vane gives wind direction. A wind velocity gauge, with automatically audible readings taken in conjunction with other tables, gives the surface force of the wind.

INGENUOUS DEVICE
A simple rain gauge and a fire-hazard indicator complete the equipment, fabricated for the most part of durable light metal. The fire-hazard indicator is an ingenious device, which, by weighing previously kiln-dried wood, tells the degree to which small and heavy twigs and boughs in the forest have absorbed recent moisture. The whole set of instruments is housed in a compact case for shelter. Much of the testing possible with these devices is already carried out by the British Columbia Forestry Branch. The design of the instruments and their relative cheapness, however, are the points that are interesting Provincial officials here. Tests will be carried out shortly at Nanaimo or Campbell River, to give a practical try-out of the equipment as a whole. P. Z. Caverhill, chief forester, stated yesterday.

Cattle Being Placed on Markets in Unfinished Condition, Western Livestock Men Report

H. P. Kennedy, president and managing director of the Edmonton Stockyards, Ltd., Edmonton, and Union Stockyards of Saskatoon, Ltd., of Saskatoon, and A. W. Burrell, manager of the Edmonton yards, were recent visitors in Victoria. While here they interviewed Hon. Dr. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture, and the livestock situation and marketing conditions in British Columbia were discussed. Speaking of the cattle situation in the Prairie Provinces, Mr. Kennedy said that the drought in Southern

IN good weather and foul, visitors to the city this summer are finding pleasure in viewing Greater Victoria from the vantage point of the gallery around the outside of the base of the dome on the Parliament Buildings.

By climbing up the rather narrow steps to the gallery a wonderful panoramic view can be had of the city and surrounding country, the San Juan Straits, Gulf of Georgia, the distant coastline of the State of Washington, outlined by the snow-capped Olympic Mountains. To the west and north can be seen the Sooke Hills, and the Esquimalt harbor. Just below, to the north, and bounded on the west by the entrance to Victoria harbor, on the south by the sea, and on the east by Beacon Hill Park, lies the district known as James Bay, named after Sir James Douglas, founder of Fort Victoria, and first Governor of British Columbia.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was affecting market prices all over Canada, as farms were marketing cattle in an unfinished condition on this account. However, all those connected with the industry were doing everything possible to relieve the situation, and the organization with which he is associated is prepared to co-operate to the fullest extent.

Mr. Kennedy, in addition to being associated with the Edmonton and Saskatoon stockyards, is the head of the H. P. Kennedy Commission Co., Ltd., operating in the Union stockyards in Toronto. He has been connected with the livestock business for over forty years and was during that time a heavy exporter of livestock to Great Britain and other European countries as well as to the United States until that market was closed to Canadian cattle by high tariffs.

OAK BAY WILL GRANT RELIEF

In order to take advantage of the relief offered those who have found it difficult to meet the tax rates in the municipality, owing to the conditions prevailing, Oak Bay will invoke the powers given the municipality under amendment passed at the last session of the Legislature, and enact a by-law to allow the rebate. To carry out the plan, a special meeting of the council will be held this morning, at which the by-law will be advanced a stage. On Thursday evening, the by-law will be finally passed.

Under this by-law, which conforms with the act, there will be a rebate for those who are delinquent in the payment of taxes, of one-half of the interest due and one-half of the penalties incurred by lapse of payments, provided the remaining amount is met.

The council of Oak Bay is also allowing those who apply for special statutory assistance where there is a building on the property, an opportunity to have their case considered by the council, looking to the granting of two years for redemption instead of one year. To get the advantage of this, all the statutory requirements under the act will have to be complied with.

B.C. Would Like Work Programme Of Five Million

B.C. Government Asks Assistance to Finance Highway Improvements as Provincial Plan—Three Provinces Line Up on National-Credit Issue—Suggest $1,000,000 for Municipalities

BRITISH Columbia has renewed at Ottawa a request for Federal aid, through loans or otherwise, to finance a $5,000,000 programme of provincial highway improvements, Premier Pattullo announced yesterday.

While it is not yet known what proportion of this programme will be approved, the Province is definitely expecting action to release at least a part of the work this Fall. This would be in addition to a Federal programme of works, in which $3,000,000 is already set out for use in British Columbia.

Two months ago, following the second Ottawa conference, the British Columbia Government submitted a schedule of road works to the Dominion, as the result of a suggested Provincial works plan. The aggregate cost of these works was placed at $5,000,000, of which $1,000,000 was detailed as work in municipal areas.

ROAD REPAIRS

The actual works would include road repairs and improvements, but

SUMMER SCHOOL COMING TO END

Classes Will Conclude at Mid-Day Friday—Concert to Be Held on Thursday Afternoon

The Summer school for teachers, which has been in progress at the Victoria High School for the past four weeks, will come to an end on Friday at midday, without formality of any kind. The last general reunion of students will be at the annual concert, which will be held at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon in the High School auditorium. Instrumental numbers by some of the talented students; songs by one or two pupils of Heber Masmyth, and some folk-dances by groups from Nancy Ferguson's class in Morris and folk-dancing, will constitute the details of the programme. A League of Nations representative will probably speak for a few minutes.

The students were entertained Monday afternoon with a movie lecture by Douglas Flintoff, who brought some of the reels with which he has from time to time entertained the children in the rural schools about the Province. The titles of the films were "Down the Spanish Main," "Making Paper and the Production of the Modern Newspaper," "A Jaunt Through London, England," and "The Cradle of Civilization." Tuesday afternoon Mr. Flintoff gave an additional four reels, which had the following titles: "The Building of the Duchess Liner," "Eastward Ho, and Half Round the World," "The Spring Cleaning of an Empress Liner," and "The Land of Ancestral Gods."

The customary weekly social dance will take place this evening at the Crystal Garden.

No Discord At Ottawa On Speech

OTTAWA, Aug. 7 (CP).—Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens have been in accord all along in connection with the withdrawal of the booklet containing Mr. Stevens' speech on the mass buying probe. This was stated officially here yesterday. Both were agreed, it was said, that with the Royal Commission shortly to continue the investigation, the speech should not be circulated.

Originally delivered during the session to a private meeting of the Conservative Study Club, an organization of members of Parliament, the address had been mimeographed for the information of these members, and it is claimed to have been a slip that caused it to be sent to others outside the membership.

The speech had some very pointed comments on conditions in industry brought to light by the probe and declarations by the minister that he would never rest until steps were taken to right them.

MAYNARD CASE GIVEN REMAND

Hearing of Two Charges Against Victoria Merchant Adjourned for Week

In the city police court, yesterday, the hearing of two charges against James William Maynard was postponed for a week on the application of A. J. Patton, his counsel, who stated he desired further information than was contained in the charges laid. They were very vague, he said, and asked for a week's remand, which was consented to by Cleve White, who appeared for the prosecution.

The accused reserved his election as to whether he would take summary trial before the police magistrate or confine the proceedings in the police court to a preliminary hearing.

The charge laid by Joseph Robert Brown, and his wife, Agnes Amelia Brown, alleged that the accused, as trustee of the property belonging to the informant, consisting of their home, had, with intent to defraud, and in violation of the trust held by him, converted to his use the Declaring themselves strongly in favor of the move, members of Esquimalt Municipal Council, Monday night, unanimously endorsed a resolution drafted by the Kamloops City Council calling for an amendment to the Municipal Act whereby municipal councils will have control over the appointment and salaries of police magistrates. The proposed amendment will be brought before the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention in Kamloops on October 3.

The change proposed by Kamloops is that police magistrates should receive their appointments from the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, as at present, but these appointments should be recommended by the municipalities, which should have power to choose the magistrates. Also, the change would give councils power of varying the salaries in keeping with the times, as is done with other municipal servants.

The two village gossipa were exchanging the latest news. "And those Richleys," said Mrs. Jones. "He says very bitter things about his two good-for-nothing sons, but his wife is always making excuses for them. Mrs. Brown nodded. "Yes," she smiled. "She may make the excuse, but he has to make the allowance."

At a meeting of the Provincial committee of selection, two Provincial University bursaries of $1,200 each were awarded yesterday under the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire War Memorial Foundation, one to Miss Helen Jean Kempton, of Mount View High School, Saanich, and the other to John Hudson Benton, of Trail High School, Trail. In conformity with the provisions of the awards under the I.O.D.E. war memorial scheme, these students are both children of war veterans. Miss Kempton is the daughter of the late Lance Corporal John Kempton, who was killed at Vimy Ridge in 1917. She made high marks in matriculation examinations and will enter first year Arts at Victoria College, her ultimate aim being to train as a private secretary.

He attended Nakusp High School, where he passed the junior matriculation and for the past year has attended the Trail High School, taking his senior matriculation with a very good pass, showing marked improvement. Reports show him to be a splendid worker and he has gained his success against difficult odds. He will enter second year Science at the University of British Columbia, his aim being to become a civil engineer.

The committee feels confident that both these students will maintain the high standard of work and success already set by the I.O.D.E. bursary holders.

Twenty-five bursaries have been granted in this Province since the establishment of the fund in 1920, the total value being $32,500, and ten post-graduate scholarships (Overseas), valued at $14,800. The I.O.D.E. in Canada raised over $890,000 for the fund, British Columbia contributing $56,000. During the past year there were six bursary holders attending the University of British Columbia and two at Victoria College. Three were granted degrees. Miss Gladys Downes, B.A., with first-class honors in French, won the French Government Scholarship; Miss Patricia Campbell, B.A., won first-class honors in history; Mr. David Campbell, B.Comm., won second-class honors, and other students passed their examinations with honors.

Sunshine Camp Vacation Brings Renewed Strength

Among the greatest gains noticed in the mothers and children when they return from their two weeks' holiday at Sunshine Camp, Saanich, is their attitude of mind. Officials of the Friendly Help Welfare Association are emphatic in their appreciation of what this brief holiday has meant to the overworked, worried mothers. Problems which had seemed beyond solution are faced with renewed courage and in many cases conditions are righted.

With the children, the important lesson of co-operation has been learned by means of group games and camp tasks shared. New friendships have been formed, and a wider outlook gained.

MORE GROUPS GOING

It is hoped to send at least one more group of mothers and children out next Tuesday for a fortnight, then a group of "teen-age" girls will go out for one week, if funds permit. The Friendly Help Welfare Association which looks after the necessary investigations and medical examinations of the applicants have found a real need among the young girls who are not reached by such organizations as C.G.I.T. or the Girl Guide Association, or any of the organized church groups. Many of them have been without adequate nourishment and in most unsatisfactory surroundings for some time and stand badly in need, for health reasons, of just the sort of holiday Camp Sunshine can give them.

If they, and the last group of mothers are not to be disappointed, funds must be sent to Fred Landsberg, 1008 Broad Street, at once. The camp is financed solely through volunteer subscriptions.

SHIP GREETED AT LADYSMITH

Officers and Crew of Cruiser
Norfolk Guests of Ladysmith Citizens

LADYSMITH, Aug. 7.—H.M.S. Norfolk steamed into Ladysmith Harbor at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and anchored in the stream several hundred yards from the Government Wharf.

A large crowd of townspeople was on hand to greet the arrival of the ship, which is reputed to be the largest naval vessel to visit here. A launch bearing an official welcoming delegation, representing the City Council and the Board of Trade, boarded the warship on her arrival, and extended a welcome on behalf of the town. Vice-Admiral Reginald Drax acknowledged the welcome presented by Mayor Walkem.

A smoking concert was staged in the quarters of the local unit of the Army and Navy Veterans, in the evening, and the Norfolk was represented by many of the ship's personnel, including the vice-admiral and other senior officers.

MAYOR TENDERS WELCOME
During an interlude in the musical programme, Mayor W. W. Walkem reaffirmed the cordial welcome of the town to the officers and crew of the warship. He admitted that no elaborate programme of entertainment had been prepared, but with the help of the Army and Navy Veterans, something of entertainment had been outlined during the ship's brief stay, that would doubtless make the memory of the visit a pleasant one.

Vice-Admiral Drax replied he was sure the personnel of the Norfolk deeply appreciated the kindness of the people of Ladysmith.

Today's programme included a tour of the lumber plant at Cheamain, with a dance in the evening.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

DANGER FROM DINTROPHENOL—NOL—WEIGHT-REDUCING DRUG

It is said that the eighteen-day diet originated with a screen star who had to have her weight down to a certain figure by a certain date, otherwise she would break her contract. The physician who outlined the diet—lamb chops, celery, lettuce, olives, grapefruit and oranges—may have succeeded in having her attain the desired weight, but many lives have been lost, and the health of many more has been wrecked in endeavoring to follow the eighteen-day diet.

Fortunately it has passed along and little or nothing is heard about it now.

However, another "quick" method has been discovered which will rapidly reduce weight by overheating the body and thus burning up fat or surplus tissue.

Experiments in Los Angeles and London with a drug known as dintrophenol or similar combination of elements has shown that while the weight may be reduced the danger to health and life is very great, as a number of deaths have already occurred in the United States.

Some months ago a dancer in London died from an overdose of dintrophenol, taken to reduce her weight.

The case led the Government to take action to prevent the public from being able to obtain such drugs so easily.

The Home Secretary asked the Pharmaceutical Society whether the drug and have it placed under the same restrictions as any other poison.

It was learned that the drugist from whom the tablets had been purchased told the girl she would be well advised to take them only under a physician's orders.

Dintrophenol or nitrophenol reduces weight by increasing the metabolism at which the body processes work, the heat of the body rising many degrees above normal, and the processes working at a rate of 50 per cent above normal.

The thought, then, is that the best and safest way to reduce weight is by cutting down on fat foods—butter, cream, fat meat, on starches—potatoes, bread, sugar, and on all liquids—water, tea, coffee or other liquids.

Dintrophenol may come into use later, but it is not yet a safe drug for every overweight to use.

"I'm sorry," said the diner who hoped to get away with it, "but I haven't any money to pay for that meal."

"That's all right," said the cashier. "We'll write your name on the wall and you can pay the next time you come in."

"Don't do that. Everybody who comes in will see it."

"Oh, no they won't. Your overcoat will be hanging over it."

"I'm sorry," said the diner who hoped to get away with it, "but I haven't any money to pay for that meal."

"That's all right," said the cashier. "We'll write your name on the wall and you can pay the next time you come in."

The Laughing Girl Mystery

By Viola Paradise

CHAPTER X

Dinard and Alby hardly spoke as the taxi hurried them down to Twelfth Street. But at the entrance to the house, Sheridan said, "You won't want me further? I'm worried about Miss Sayre."

"Miss Sayre can wait a few minutes. Seeing the Cogges' apartment again, even without the lavender-eyed girl, may prod your memory."

Sheridan shrugged. Mrs. Cogges opened the door. Her face, by daylight, seemed to Sheridan more toad-like and greedy than ever.

"Well, I'm glad you came, Mr. Alby. And now I'd thank you to clear your police out of my house. They won't let me scrub the place on my rug. All the while it'll get deeper and deeper in."

"Mamma, stop jawin' about that rug! Mr. Cogges limped close behind her. "Well, Mr. Alby, got the murderer yet?"

"Not yet."

"Nor found out who the girl is?"

"Not yet. We'd like another around, please. The person who did it was apparently familiar with our apartment, and your week-end habits. Perhaps some relative?"

"We haven't any relatives," snapped Mrs. Cogges.

"No children?"

"No," said Mr. Cogges. But Mrs. Cogges began to cry. Her face wrinkled up and became incredibly ugly. "There, there, mamma," her husband said, and patted her arm while he explained to Alby, "She's never got over the loss of the right after the fire in San Francisco. It was now, now, mamma, shut up. And maybe Mr. Alby'll find out who murdered the girl on your rug."

Alby led the way into the living-room. Sheridan was once more assailed by the room's eerie familiarity—a different sort of familiarity, however, from that which the dead girl aroused. Yet he was sure that until last night he had never seen it or any room just like it. The single difference in it now was the pipe on the mantel and the faint odor of pipe smoke in the house.

Alby picked up the pipe. "It's a nice one," he said. "New?"

"Yes," snapped Cogges.

"And much more expensive than it should be," Mrs. Cogges grumbled. "He could just as well have used his old one and cleaned it out often."

Alby cut short the bickering by walking into the dining-room, then the bedroom, the bathroom, and finally the kitchen. It was only in the last that he paused long, looking into the cupboard, the bread box and even lifting the lid of a pot on the stove. He looked at his watch. "I'll see you this afternoon."

The District Attorney's office on Center Street. You too, Dinard. As they reached the door, Mr. Cogges peered close into Sheridan's face. "I certainly met you some place," he said darkly.

"And you, Dinard," said Alby, "do you remember Mr. Cogges?"

"I'm sorry, but I don't."

"Judging from the papers," Mrs. Cogges said tartly, "Mr. Dinard's memory is better for people he never saw before, like that girl that got herself murdered on my rug. With two empty apartments," asked Alby sharply, "I understood there was only one."

"There's only one not rented—the one just above. But the people on the third floor, the Coggeses, they're away for a month, but they're paying their rent," said Mr. Cogges.

"Well, until we've talked to Moralda, let's forget that scratch. They didn't find any other clues, did they?"

"No, they didn't, Sherry. But I did—a baggage check. It was in among the papers on my desk. I don't see how they missed it."

"You took it down to them, of course."

"No, I didn't."

"Why on earth—here, give it to me."

"I—I haven't got it."

"Let's go back for it." "I know I shouldn't have done it," she said. "I tore it up in tiny pieces and threw it down the toilet."

"But, darling! Why, that might have been the one real clue! We'll have to tell Alby."

"Oh, no. Sherry, please don't! It will get me into trouble—both of us."

Because they'll ask why, and I can't tell them."

"You can tell me."

She shook her head. "Please don't be cross, Sherry. My nerves are all on edge."

"I'm not cross, dear. But it's so unlike you—and it may make trouble."

Not if you don't say anything about it. Why just think—they might have found it!"

"But they should have found it!" She looked away and swallowed before replying, "Right on my desk."

Sherry laid down the fork and leaned back. "Good heavens!" he exclaimed. "You don't think!"

"No, I don't! I won't let myself think. I'm sure you have some good reason for keeping anything from me that you like. I don't doubt you for a minute, Sherry, not a minute."

"Yet, because I went upstairs to get your letter from that desk—"

"I didn't say it."

"I don't think it now, Sherry. It was just a new attack of jealousy. I remembered the way you looked at that girl. And suddenly I felt that it was her baggage check. And then my feelings got all mixed up. They had been questioning me about that scratch in the linen cabinet. And whether you had been in the apartment alone at any time yesterday."

And I said only for a moment when you'd gone up to get my letter—and suddenly it occurred to me, Sherry, that someone must be trying to frame you—that's the right word, isn't it? Somebody who knew you."

"You can hardly expect perfect facial control," he said bitterly, "when the person dearest to you in the whole world won't believe your honest word."

He laughed shortly. "Just what did the check look like?"

"It was pink, or rather cerise, on coarse-grained cardboard. Otherwise it was like any other baggage check."

"I don't suppose in your moment of protectiveness and jealousy you thought to keep track of the number?"

"I can't bear it when you talk to me like this, Sherry! But I do remember the number. As if it were etched on my eyeballs. If you want to know, the number was 8 dash 14 dash 663."

Without another word they left the restaurant and got a taxi headed downtown.

The inconspicuous man at the next table deserted a half-eaten meal and sauntered out to a waiting car.

"I got their number," said its driver. "We'll pick 'em up at the next stop light."

ANNUAL Y.M.C.A. CAMP CONCLUDED

Tired but happy after a week's camp, thirty-nine boys were yesterday recalling the glorious time spent at Maple Lawn Camp, Sooke, where the annual Y.M.C.A. Summer camp was held. The outing opened on July 23 and closed on Saturday. Forty-five boys were under canvas the first week.

An intensive programme of education and sport was carried out under the direction of camp leaders. Two Indian boys from the Ahousat Mission School instructed the camp in Indian folk-lore and acted as tutors for tracking, boat-building and kindred activities.

Baseball, hiking, swimming and other sports dear to the hearts of any boys were also prominent in the camp agenda. Sing-songs and round-campfire meetings were also included. Recreational periods were held during the two weeks by camp authorities.

In days of old when nights were cold, it took two fleeces from the fold to dress a lady fair.

But in these days of jazz and bob a little silkworm does the job, with yards galore to spare.

CANADIAN WINS EMPIRE GAMES MARATHON EVENT

Canadian Aquatic Stars Capture More Than Half of Titles

Dominion's Squad of Swimmers Loaded Down With Glory as Events Close—Phyllis Dewar and George Burleigh Hold Spotlight During Meet

By THOMAS T. CHAMPTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EMPIRE POOL, WEMBLEY, Eng., Aug. 7 (CP).—Loaded down with the glory that goes to champions and near-champions, Canadian swimmers bowed out of the British Empire Games picture, tonight. In two nights of record-breaking, the Canadian water forces captured more than half the titles at stake and produced the two outstanding swimmers in the Empire—Phyllis Dewar, of Moose Jaw, Sask., and George Burleigh, of Toronto.

In a final splash of scoring, Miss Dewar and Burleigh paced the victorious Canadians to four championships tonight. The Moose Jaw sensation won the women's 440-yard final from Jennie Maakal, of South Africa, and Irene Pirie, of Toronto. Then Burleigh whopped a fine field in the classic men's 100-yard freestyle. George Larson, of Hamilton, Ont., was second.

Canadians dominated the sprints, taking three of the four. They completely swept the relay, winning all four. Miss Dewar and Burleigh were outstanding here, too. In addition, one of the four diving titles was won by a Canadian, Judith Moss, of Winnipeg. England captured three.

The final gesture of triumph by Canada came in the women's 300-yard medley relay, and Miss Dewar made it a personal affair. Margaret Hutton, of Toronto, swimming the backstroke leg, lost four yards to Phyllis Harding, of England. In the breaststroke stage, Phyllis Harding, of England, was unable to make up any of the deficit against Ruth Kingston. So it was up to the champion.

THRILLING VICTORY
Miss Dewar appeared beaten as she chased England's Edna Hughes up the tank. At the turn, the British girl retained her lead. But she could not save off the Canadian's finishing rush. Miss Dewar sprinted superbly, passing Ruth a yard from the finish and winning by a touch.

Strangely enough, Miss Dewar was not favored to win either of the women's freestyle events. But she won the 100 and 440-yard races on successive days and played leading roles on two winning relay teams. Probably no athlete in the games will take home as many first-place medals.

Miss Maakal and Miss Pirie were having the quarter-mile lead all to themselves when Miss Dewar suddenly put on a dazzling sprint for the last two laps. Miss Maakal, the Saskatchewan girl finished ten yards ahead of Miss Maakal, an Olympic point winner, with Miss Pirie another two yards back.

Burleigh, "kid" sensation at the first Empire Games, four years ago, passed up everything in a gamble for the 100-yard title. He anchored the winning 880-yard team, yesterday, and the 300-yard medley squad tonight.

PIRIE BEATEN
For the second time, the bulky figure of Noel Ryan, of Australia, got between Bob Pirie and victory. The Toronto youth lost a close decision yesterday in the 1,500-yard freestyle final, and today, Ryan retained his other Empire crown over the 440-yard route. Pirie was third, behind Norman Wainwright, of England.

Canada's superiority over the rest of the Empire in swimming was shown in the Dominion's winning seven firsts, six seconds, four thirds. The divers accounted for one victory and two thirds. Harry Class, of Kitchener, Ont., was third in the men's springboard diving, today.

Big Field to Face Starter in Annual Seniors' Golf Meet

Entry List Continues to Swell as Date for Opening of Veterans' Classic Nears—Colwood Course to Be Scene of Tourney Next Week

With entries already filed with Captain J. V. Perks, secretary of the association, from Vancouver, Comox, Courtenay, Kamloops, Toronto, Seattle, Portland, Spokane, Everett, Tacoma, Yakima, Port Angeles, Chino, Bellevue, and Pendleton, along with the large local list, the twelfth annual tournament of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association, which opens at the Colwood course next Monday, should go down in the record books as one of the biggest and most successful of them all.

Competitors have still the rest of the week to file their names with Secretary Perks, which means when the zero hour comes, a near record field is expected to face the starters. Close to 100 have already entered.

Veteran club swingers who have captured the grand championship on different occasions, some who have fought in vain for the honors, and others who have been knocking at the championship door for many years, will be on hand bright and early Monday morning when the large contingent gets away for the qualifying round over the eighteen-hole distance. Besides the grand championship, there will be the various classes, namely, A, B, C, and D, while the numerous flights will follow. Those qualifying in the grand championship and desiring to drop back into their class, may do so.

Play will continue every day until Friday, when the finals will be carried out. The tournament will terminate in the evening at the annual banquet and distribution of prizes at the Union Club. Further particulars will be announced later in the week.

Arrows broke up what had been a pitched duel between Watchorn and Kershaw when they tallied two runs on two errors, two hits and two walks in their half of the seventh, before the Gaasmen started their parade around the bases in the last half of the inning.

Two singles and a wild pitch gave the Arrows their third and last counter in the eighth.

HAMILTON DISTANCE RUNNER SHOWS WAY TO POWERFUL FIELD

Harold Webster, Forty-Year-Old Campaigner, Breaks Games' Record in Greatest Triumph of Career—Sweeney Takes Century and 220—Rampling Is 440 Winner—Addison Fifth

LONDON, Aug. 7 (CP).—Harold Webster, of Hamilton, Ont., forty years old and unaccustomed to competing in international events, won the British Empire Games marathon today to give the track and field division of the games its major drama.

Victory in the twenty-six-mile, 385-yard classic event sent the Canadian flag to the masthead for the third time in the dying minutes of the White City championships, climaxing a rally by Canadians that blocked England's sweeping charge just in the nick of time. The Britons had threatened to win everything in sight.

Before the veteran Webster came into the stadium to finish his greatest triumph amidst such tumult and shouting as the big bowl has seldom seen, fifteen-year-old Sam Richardson, of Toronto, and Robert Dixon, of Vancouver, had combined to rally the Canadian forces.

Richardson, who failed to win the Canadian schoolboy title at home last Spring, and placed only third in the Canadian trials, won the running broad jump over a field of internationalists with a leap of 23 feet 6 1/4 inches. His winning jump was little more than an inch short of the Empire record.

Dixon, who showed only mediocre form in the Canadian trials, because of an injured side, won the javelin throw, at 196 feet 11 inches. These were triumphs unhoped for by the Canadian contingent, fine wins that paved the way for Webster's climaxing run.

England had mastered her Empire on the track, leaving no doubts as to her superiority when the last event on the field was finished. On the third and final day she had shaken loose every restraining hand and shattered record after record to humble her visitors.

When this was over there remained only the finish of the marathon. It was to be a Scottish celebration, a battle between Donald McNab Robertson and Duncan McLeod Wright, defending champion. Then the steel-legged Webster entered the stadium, unsmiling but apparently untired.

GIVEN BIG OVATION
As the Canadian ran evenly around the quarter-mile track, a crowd of 40,000 stood up and cheered. The Canadian contingent, athletes and officials, went mad with joy. The band on the infield played "The Maple Leaf Forever" and Webster flushed a deep red that showed through his tan.

With the strains of national music urging him on, the Hamilton older sprinted most of the last lap and finished fresh in 2 hours 40 minutes 36 seconds, breaking the Empire Games record of 2:42:43 set in 1930, at Hamilton, by the veteran Scott Wright. Webster's closest challenger was still outside the stadium when jubilant Canadians escorted the victor to his dressing-room.

Britain's great woman sprinter, Elaine Hiscok, turned in an amazing, twenty-five-second flat 220 yards to win her second dash title. There was no listed world record for the event, but Miss Hiscok's time bettered anything known to be on the books. The United States record of 25.1 was set in 1931 by Betty Robinson, of Chicago.

Eileen Meagher, of Halifax, Canada's foremost furion sprinter, forced Miss Hiscok to the limit. The Canadian girl was second, three yards back, and two in front of Nellie Halstead, of England. Lillian Palmer, of Vancouver, was fourth, and Hilda Cameron, of Toronto, fifth.

ADDISON FIFTH
Godfrey Rampling landed the men's 440-yard title for England, winning the final in 48 seconds flat. His closest rivals were both mates, Roberts taking second and C. H. Stoney taking third. Addison, of Victoria, fifth. Rampling's time was an Empire record.

The good work was carried on by S. G. Scarsbrook, who dethroned George Bailey, of England, in the two-mile steeplechase. Bailey was third. The only Canadian in the event, Earl Moore, of Hamilton, was fifth. The Canadian ran well throughout, finishing about sixty yards behind the winner.

F. A. W. Sweeney lifted his second sprint crown in the 220 yards, creating a fast field in the final in 21.9 seconds. Frank Nicks, of Halifax, only Canadian to reach the final, was sixth. The hammer throw title was retained by M. C. Nokes, of England, with a record-breaking toss of 158 ft. 3 ins. Nokes won the event in 1930.

Only big George Sutherland, of Calgary, gave Nokes serious opposition. The two were the class of the field, Sutherland taking second with a best throw of 151 ft. 8 ins. Bob Waters, of Vancouver, took fourth with a toss of 130 ft. 10 ins.

GREAT EFFORTS
Canadian girls made brilliant attempts in the 80 metres hurdles and broad jump. Marjorie Clark, of South Africa, was forced to a new British record of 11.8 secs. to beat Betty Taylor, of Hamilton, in the hurdles. The time was one-tenth of a second slower than the world record held by Mildred Didrickson, of United States.

Marjorie, who previously won the high jump, and Betty gave a superlative display of hurdling. They were two feet apart at the tape. Evelyn Green, of England, was fourth. Rosy Atkins, of Toronto, fifth, and Aida Wilson, of Toronto, sixth.

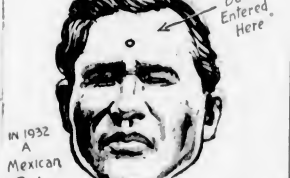

Evelyn Goshawk far surpassed any broad jumping she had done at home in a vain effort to beat Phyllis Bartholomew, of England, for the Empire title. The English girl won the event with a leap of 17 ft. 11 1/4 ins., two inches better than the Winnipeg girl's best jump. Mary Frizzell, of Vancouver, placed fourth, jumping 17 ft. 1 in.

Virginia Vane Says:

WISE WIFE CAN WIN HUSBAND BACK TO COMMON-SENSE

Dear Virginia Vane: Each day I enjoy the sound psychology displayed in your talks, and am accordingly bringing my problem to you, hoping you may shed some light on it.

What is the best course for a middle-aged wife to pursue when she finds that her perfectly good husband with whom she has journeyed through life for a quarter of a century has begun to seek "romance" with a young woman in his office?

Ours is a peaceful home, but I fear that the children, some of whom are adult, are realizing that their father is straying from the straight and narrow path. So far I have pretended not to be aware of the situation and have tried in every way to keep the children from knowing. We have been such a close family group that I dread the exposure.

Do clandestine affairs of this kind thrive best in the darkness and secrecy in which they were started? Or do they die a natural death in the course of time? Will an attitude of laissez-faire on the part of the wife effect a cure, or should she take steps to uproot the evil before it fastens too deeply? The man in question is not a philanderer, and the little stenographer is not a gold-digger, although I daresay she is not unaware of the advantages accruing to her from this affair.—Perplexed.

So far, so good, Perplexed. You've kept your head on your shoulders. No tears here. No slamming out of the house in a rage. No bitter wallings of "How could you—How could you?"

Your attitude has prepared the way for the right sort of talk with your husband. So many women do their weeping and lamenting first and thus diminish the effect of the nice, sensible talk they're prepared to make later.

Yes, clandestine affairs are apt to go along much more smoothly if the participants are under the delusion that only they two know the secret. There is a good deal more romantic flavor about the business of a secret meeting, a dangerous rendezvous, etc. Two people infatuated with each other can drift along indefinitely in a Fool's Paradise if they're let alone.

You see, there's nothing to disturb the romantic illusion. When they see each other they have barely time to exchange a few sweet nothings on the subject of each other's charms. Their meetings are hurried, furtive, guilty—but not dull. The ordinary everyday worries of life are shut out of this little idyll of theirs. They keep their secret and regard it as an escape from the monotonous grind of every day.

That's why plain, everyday common-sense thinking has to be applied to the affair in order to break it up.

A man may lose himself in a dream of romance—may drift along, forgetting everything but his infatuation—may appear to have lost all touch with the world of reality. Yet let his partner of twenty-five years confront him calmly and reasonably with a few hard facts and he sobers up amazingly—quickly.

When his little idyll suddenly ceases to be an exciting episode and becomes a weighty problem to be considered carefully, a good deal of the spice goes out of the situation.

For the man hasn't wanted to change his whole life in order to enjoy this flirtation. He has wanted the affair all nicely done up in one box—and his real life, his comfortable, respectable real life, tidily arranged for him in another package.

The danger is, of course, that he allows the little flirtation to take up more and more of his time and thoughts, so that one day he begins to lose his sense of values completely. That is why the wise wife does not stand aloof forever, pretending not to see what's going on.

She steps in and presents her husband's indiscretion to him in a new light. She takes away his sense of adventure and gives him back his sense of responsibility. She brushes away a few romantic cobwebs from his mind and brings to light his sense of humor which has been absent for months. She lets him see his infatuation for what it is—a bit of dangerous nonsense which may disrupt the peace of his home and separate him from the woman who's loved and understood him for years.

There aren't very many men on record who have clung determinedly to their half-baked little romances in the face of their wife's reasonable, good-humored opposition. Most of them only need a helping hand to get back their common-sense.

So, Perplexed, your work is cut out for you. Go on with your admirably reasoned course of action. When you have your big discussion, be sure to hold out the helping hand and avoid the stormy accusing line of attack. Man's weakness cannot be cured with bitter reproaches or angry tears. But it can be effectually erased with a woman's strength and her tenderness and her understanding.

Good luck to you.

R.W.: Stick to your guns. You won't be happy with the man your family picked out, if your heart doesn't approve the choice. And you will be happy, no matter how long you have to wait, if you marry the man who is doing his utmost to prove to you how much character he has.

Life won't be so difficult for you when your parents see that you're in earnest about your choice of a husband, when they are made to realize that your candidate is doing far more to prove himself a man than his theirs.

CARIBOO MEN ARE JUBILANT

Good Results Being Obtained Along the Bars of Fraser River

BARKERVILLE—Real "dyed-in-the-wool" placer or "gum boot" miners in the Cariboo District of British Columbia, are jubilant this year over the results that are being obtained along the bars of the Fraser River and on the various creeks of the Cariboo.

Owing to the most favorable water conditions known in years, and coupled with the advanced price of gold, there has been more activity in placer circles than there has been since the pioneer days when the Cariboo was the greatest source of placer wealth in all the North. Creeks are being worked and new areas are being prospected that in the past have been considered of too low a grade to be profitable, and the results that are being obtained are proving that the Cariboo as a placer camp is one of the best districts in Canada.

Several years ago when lode mining was just starting in this district, the placer miners were a bit jealous of the findings that were being made by the quartz prospectors. It is a known fact that a real placer miner seldom has any time for a quartz mine, and by the same token a real hard rock man looks upon placer mining as a kind of makeshift way of recovering gold. However, as placer has long been the backbone of the mining industry in the Cariboo, its followers professed to scorn the possibilities of the Cariboo ledges, and many stated that it would be a long time before the lode gold output of the section equaled the placers.

IS TEST YEAR
This year was looked upon by both sides of the controversy as a test year. The Cariboo Gold Quartz was in production and several other properties were getting ready to go into actual milling. Then came the increase in the price of gold, and hundreds of placer men swarmed over the district. Every bar in the Fraser had its crew busy with rockers and sluice boxes. Lowhee Creek, with an abundance of water, went into production early. Over on Lightning Creek, Jim Williams was taking out money, as was the Eldorado Company, and the Last Chance, near Stanley, Slough Creek was producing and good results were being obtained on Ogen Creek by Armstrong.

The French Creek Company started taking out money on French Creek, and all over the district came news of new finds and of new equipment being installed. Baker Creek, the lower Cottonwood and other new finds were made, until today it looks very much as though the contentions of the placer men are coming true—and that for this year at least the placer output of the Cariboo will exceed the output extracted from lode mining.

However, in the meantime, the season is still young and with Cariboo Gold Quartz ready to get into full production, and the Newmont mill in operation before snow flies, it may be a close race at that.

News of Mines

By Bais & Co., Ltd.

MACASSA—Macassa is expected to commence paying dividends in the very near future. The first payment is expected to be 5c a share. The mill at the Macassa Mine is treating 300 tons a day, yielding an operating profit of $50,000 from a gold income of nearly $100,000. Net income is at the rate of between 25c and 30c a share annually.

Falconbridge—The second quarter of the current year was the best in the history of Falconbridge Nickel, with net earnings, after all deductions, equal to 11-1/2c a share. The first quarter net earnings were 11c a share. Due to the strong financial position of the company, it is expected that disbursements in the way of dividends this year will be higher than 25c a share.

Morning Star—We hear the Morning Star Mine has enough ore blocked out to set a value of 45c on the shares of the company. The last shipment of ore to Trail gave values ranging from $35 to $110, with gold at $35 an ounce.

Glencora—A wire received from J. T. Flinn, M.E., chief engineer at Glencora Gold Mines, states that a twelve-inch channel sample taken from the 3 vein, west from the pit, assayed $84.80, with gold at $20.57.

Reno—Production for July reached an all-time record, with figures placed at well over $65,000, with 2,815 tons milled and mill-heads figured at $24.39. This leaves the net at over $40,000 before depreciation, equal to 2c a share on the capitalization of the company.

Smelter Gold Again Diamond Drilling—Diamond drilling has been started at the Smelter Gold property at Gods Lake. The first hole is to be finished in a few days. Some weeks ago a heavy flow of water was unexpectedly encountered in the shaft, at 175 feet. The equipment to handle it is taken in hand. The ground work will be impossible. The opportunity is being taken to put down more diamond drill holes in advance of underground workings. Gods Lake Gold—Gods Lake Gold Mines, Limited, has sold 50,000 treasury shares, en bloc, at a price of $2 a share, direct to large mining groups. It is stated that all finances needed, commensurate with whatever size the property develops under drifting, are assured. This sale brings issued shares to approximately 2,500,000, out of the 3,000,000 share authorized capital, and makes cash on hand approximately $275,000. First-level drifting has now covered a total length of approximately 200 feet, and of this assays have been made on 100 feet, with average values over drift running $23 a ton, officially. This is at the present gold price. Second-level drifting, which has now proceeded 70 feet, is still in low-grade material, running $7 or less. Study of the drilling indicates that some good values are not far ahead of the western face on this level. It is considered that there is a possibility that the ore body is raking west.

Premier Gold—A unofficial report states that Premier Gold is increasing its mill to handle many tons of low-grade ore, which have been rendered commercial by the higher prices of gold and silver. The rumor that B.C. Silver has come to terms with Premier, is still current, and the mill increase at Premier is attributed by many people to the possibility of Premier milling B.C. Silver ore. An increased income for Premier Gold is predicted this year, since income from its own mine will be greater, as well as that from Tourn Mines and the company's West African property. Relief Arlington Mine will provide a new source of income. Development work at the Arlington Mine is shaping up very satisfactorily and further equipment has been sent up there.

Denton—The capacity of the mill is being increased to 140 tons daily.

Much Activity in Keithley Cariboo

There is more activity in placer mining in this district than in many years. The Moorhead Mines, with headquarters in Seattle, Wash., have a crew of eight men at work and are putting in a ten-mile ditch line, which they hope to have completed by late this month.

The Bullion Mine has let a contract to the Jamieson Construction Company for the building of a ditch from Polley to Moorhead Lake. The contract will amount to an expenditure of $10,000 to $20,000.

The Bullion Mine is at present piping with two giants and as soon as their additional power is completed, it will be in full production. Mining men who have had the opportunity to "pan" in the Bullion pit report high-grade pay dirt.

"What! Marry my daughter?" cried the rich old man angrily. "Why, she's my only child!" "But, you see, sir," explained the bold young man, "one has all I wanted."

At the Theatres

CAPITOL OFFERS VIENNESE FILM

"Blue Danube" Has Strong Cast Headed by Jessie Matthews—Plot Unusual

"Blue Danube Nights," the much talked-about motion picture coming to the Capitol Theatre for three days, starting today, is the story of the birth of the most famous and best liked of all waltzes, "The Blue Danube." It is an entirely new type of musical extravaganza, combining unforgettable music, splendid songs and a plot as novel as it is romantic, as entrancing as it is exciting. It tells of the clash between Johann Strauss, Sr., and his son as the latter endeavors to climb to fame and fortune. It shows the jealousy that existed on the part of the elder Strauss over the undoubted genius of his son.

The cast that portrays the highly romantic story is a notable one and is headed by Jessie Matthews, who has established herself as a prime favorite with Canadian motion picture goers. She is ably assisted by Edmund Gwenn, who plays the part of Johann Strauss, Sr., and Esmond Knight, who enacts the role of Johann Strauss, Jr. Fay Compton also has a prominent part in the production.

EMPIRE—"His Grace Gives Notice," the current British feature at the Empire Theatre, will be seen for the last time today. Victor Stanley and Viola Keats are seen in the leading roles. As the added feature, the management is showing Clarke Gable in "No Man of Her Own."

DOMINION—It may sound foolish, but it works, and after all, it's results that count. Warner Oland, as Charlie Chan in "Charlie Chan's Courage," now at the Dominion Theatre, has dialogue of the most difficult kind, English given a Chinese treatment, with several back-to-front proverbs thrown in for good measure, such as "Beg to remind that setting hen aquats lightly on this egg." It isn't easy to learn. Oland manages it by copying by hand or typewriter the lines of the script. Once he has written them himself, he has no difficulty.

COLUMBIA—A picturesque palm-theatre shaded oasis was constructed on the desert sand dunes near Yuma, Arizona, as an action background for "The Lost Patrol," RKO-Radio production now at the Columbia Theatre, featuring an imposing cast headed by Victor McLaglen, Boris Karloff, Reginald Denny and Wallace Ford.

Playhouse—Ralph Bellamy, one of Katharine Hepburn's two leading men in "Spitfire," now at the Playhouse Theatre, began his career by running away from home when parental frownings threatened to quash theatrical ambitions.

Arlington is a big low-grade property. In three months of 1934, production averaged $20-250 per month, at the rate of $22.75 gold per ton of ore mined. Premier has staked twenty-four additional claims and has laid out a new camp for seventy-five men.

PREMIER FINANCES
Premier Company dividends, present rate, is twelve cents per share per annum, payable quarterly, and the total distribution of dividends to December 31, 1933, reached $17,258,075. The company's assets as shown in the 1933 balance sheet totaled $368,866; investment account, $822,486; current assets, $2,002,488; mining property after depreciation and depletion, $498,593; and current liabilities, $373,758.

The above is a brief review of the company's operations obtained from recent statements and reports.

WANT RECORDER
CLINTON.—Prospectors coming in from the White Water country to register the location of claims in the Taseko Lake district are raising objections on account of the long delay to complete their locations. They want a recording office established at the head of Taseko Lake and will petition the Provincial Minister of Mines to that effect.

TOWN PUMP POPULAR
REDKEY, Ind. (UP).—The old town pump may be forgotten equipment in some communities, but it has come back to Redkey in all its glory. The town council has installed two pumps. Bright, new tin cups dangle from the handle.

In response to numerous requests, Alan King will be the floor attraction at the Belmont Cabaret tonight. Mr. King's glorious voice has long been appreciated in Victorian music and will be heard at its best in the two up-to-date songs he has chosen.

EXPECT TO GET BOATS TO BUILD

Japanese Shipbuilders Figure on Torpedo Boats for Siamese Government—Submit Tenders

The Siamese Government has called on Japanese shipbuilders for bids on the construction of two torpedo boats of 400 tons displacement each, and the Journal Asahi expresses confidence that the Kawasaki Dockyard Company, which accepted the proposal to submit a tender, will be successful in obtaining the contract. The request was received through the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, which submitted it to the association of shipbuilders.

The paper recalled that Siam was friendly to Japan at the time the country withdrew from the League of Nations. In consequence, the Navy and Finance Ministries rendered good offices in connection with the negotiations for the torpedo-boat order. Shipbuilding firms are highly gratified at the prospect of profitable business, especially in view of the fact that orders for war vessels from Brazil, Mexico, Greece and other countries carried such unfavorable terms that they could not be accepted.

The Kawasaki Dockyard Company some time ago built a ship for the Siamese Government, and at the present time the exchange rate is favorable for Japan's realization of the contract, the paper points out.
